Summitview Welcomes Student Teacher

The class of 6B is enjoying having a student teacher in our classroom. Miss Young is joining us from the University of Alberta and will be with us until the Christmas break at which time she will have completed her teaching degree. Miss Young is not stranger to Grande Cache, as she has lived and worked here in the past.

Welcome to Summitview, Miss Young!

Celebrity Sightings at Summitview

The crew of the USS Enterprise, along with an alien, made their way to our school for Halloween!

Austin Powers (a.k.a Ethan McNeil) made an appearance at our Halloween Dance!

High Education Standards

Grade 7 student Gage McAmmond shows off his food web that he created as part of the grade 7 Science curriculum.

All students in the class were able to explore, learn, and demonstrate their understanding of the different types of consumers by creating their own poster. Learning opportunities such as these, where students do hands on work, help them meet the outcomes that they need.

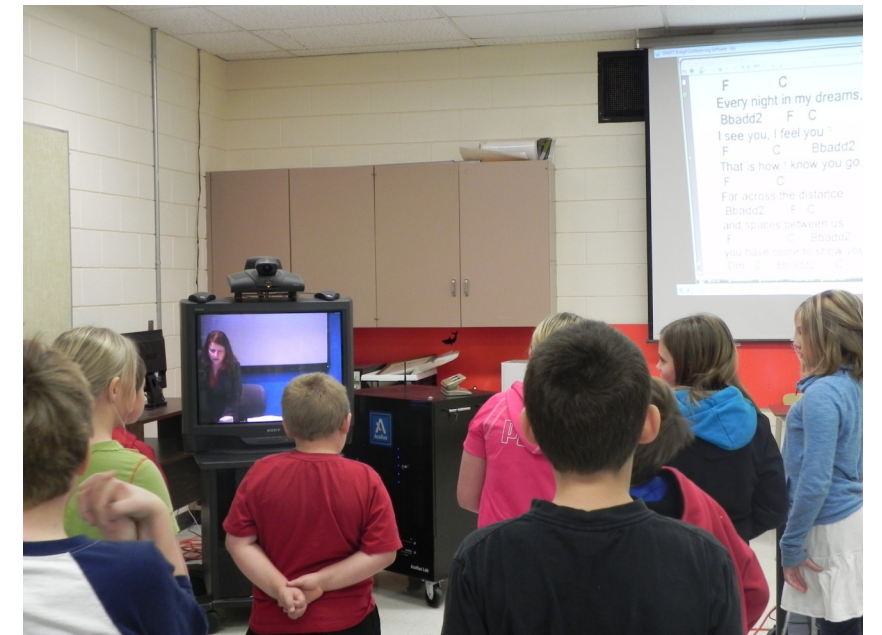

Adapt to a Changing Society

Finding creative solutions to providing programs to our students has led to trying out a couple of classes taking choral music through video conference with a music teacher in Edson.

Pictured here is our grade 5 choral music class learning how to use their voice in singing.

Using technology as a learning tool also helps our students continue to be creative as 21st century learners!

Collaborative Partnerships

Working in cooperation with Creative Campus, Summitview was pleased to have "The Clay Teacher" come in from Edmonton to show our students how to create terrific sculptures!

Here, Aiden Mines shows off his creation of Canadian Wildlife! The clay is a special air drying clay that the students will get to paint to complete their artistic vision! Great job, Aiden!

Variety of Complementary Experiences

We continue to work toward providing a variety of opportunities for students to learn.

There is also drama, volleyball and many others for our students!

Ethan McNeil learns the art of digital photography.

Tristan Blaszczyk shows off his leaf art in Miss Brown's grade 5 class.

Socially Responsible Citizens

Every day, our staff is looking for students who conduct themselves with social responsibility.

Doing the right thing is encouraged and rewarded through our Eagle Pride program, where students have the opportunity to win prizes by doing the things that help make our school a great place to be.

Pictured here are the Eagle Pride draw winners for September. Prizes were movie passes from Noelle's and slushies from Esso. Thank you for supporting our students!
